VANE MIRROR

When craftsmanship and technology come together, they create space for something special.

Wood that folds around glass. Not as a frame, but as a structure.
The Vane Mirror grew from this simple idea. The wood follows the shape of the mirror glass, curves around it and supports it almost effortlessly. Form and construction become one. The soft curves give the object a tactile character, while the precision of its construction makes the craftsmanship tangible.

Designing through making

At Studio Vroonland, every design begins with an idea. It is sketched, developed and brought to life in the workshop. Designing and making are continuously connected.
This attention to how an object is made runs as a common thread through Vroonland's work. At a time when design and production are becoming increasingly separated, Studio Vroonland consciously chooses the opposite approach. From the first sketch to the finished product, the Vane Mirror is developed and made entirely within the studio. CNC technology and traditional craftsmanship come together in the process, leaving room to refine the design as it is being made. Craftsmanship is not the final step, but an integral part of the design itself.

The collection

The Vane Mirror is available in round, square, rectangular and full-length versions, in a range of wood species and finishes. From brushed oak and walnut to expressive colours, the material remains a visible and essential part of the design.
A large part of the collection is also available with an integrated OLED TV.
In addition to the standard collection, custom dimensions, wood species, colours and project-specific configurations are available. This catalogue provides an overview of the models, dimensions, materials, technical specifications and prices.

VANE OLED MIRROR TV

What happens when craftsmanship and technology enhance one another?

The Vane Mirror is the result of a collaboration between Studio Vroonland and OLED Mirror TV. Two worlds come together in a design in which technology almost seems to disappear.

The wooden frame folds around the mirror glass and gives the Vane Mirror its distinctive character. Within it, the OLED screen is subtly integrated. At the touch of a button, the mirror transforms into a screen, revealing an image where there was once only a reflection. Switch the screen off, and the technology fades back into the background.

It is precisely this transition that makes the Vane Mirror so distinctive: an object that continually reveals itself in a different way, without ever changing its form.
Even the smallest details have been carefully considered. The opening in the mirror glass features rounded corners with a 7 mm radius, echoing the soft lines of the frame. The minimal thickness of OLED technology allows for a refined integration, bringing mirror, image and wood together as one coherent object.

The Vane Mirror is fully developed and made by Studio Vroonland, in collaboration with OLED Mirror TV. From CNC machining and technical development to hand finishing and assembly, every stage takes place in the studio. In this way, technology, design and craftsmanship come together in a single object.

Available in brushed oak, brushed black oak and walnut. Any desired RAL colour is available at an additional cost of €250.
